

Serving Abandoned and Orphaned Children in Mexico

Since 1966

October 2017

The children are back in school this fall. Some are in preschool, some in elementary school, middle school, high school. And some feel led to attend one of the universities in Monterrey and prepare for a career.

Education is a blessing to these children and young men and women. It is expensive to go to school. A requirement for all public schools is school uniforms. These are not cheap, and one of the reasons many children don't continue their schooling. Caring Action for Children makes sure that each little one has adequate uniforms and school shoes, as well as other required and necessary school supplies.

Uniforms are ready for the various schools the children attend.

HEI Home in Oaxaca

Pictured here - some of the students living in our HEI Home in Tlaxiaco, Oaxaca. This home was built to make it possible for Mixtecan indigenous boys and girls to get an education. They come to us from their homes high up in the mountains, where people speak only Mextecan. By studying with us in Tlaxiaco, they have the chance to further their education.

The Shelter in Monterrey

This is Sapphire, who was welcomed to our Home in Monterrey - The Shelter. She is three year old, and likes playing with toys.

Uriel is Sapphire's brother. He is 6 years old and in the 2nd primary grade. Uriel has some motor development delays, and has trouble walking well. He has been getting physical rehabilitation through the UANL (Autonomous University of Nuevo León.) Despite his challenges, Uriel loves his sister, he is smart, and very noble. Due to a legal situation, he and his sister cannot leave the grounds of the Home. Psychologists are there to help with their emotional formation.

Casa Cinco Banderas

Our Home for young men furthering their education is badly in need of air conditioners. The dormitories are upstairs, and in the Mexican heat, the students find it difficult to study. Seven air conditioning units are needed, at a cost of 5000 pesos ($275 dollars) each. If you feel led to help these students complete their education and training, please indicate this as you make your donation online or through the mail.
